

The diagram illustrates the layout for a two-page spread. It features a central gutter where the pages are bound. On each side, there are three vertical lines: a red line closest to the gutter, a blue line further out, and a green line at the outer edge. Arrows point from the text labels to these respective lines. A horizontal blue line runs across the top of the pages, and a horizontal green line runs across the bottom. A horizontal double-headed arrow is positioned between the blue and green lines, indicating the width of the page body. The background is a light gray with large, faint letters 'R', 'E', 'S', 'I', 'D', 'E' on the left and 'O', 'U', 'T', 'S', 'I', 'D', 'E' on the right.
